Solar air conditioner is actually a dual-fuel air conditioner. It uses free solar energy as the energy source for the absorption chiller on sunny days, and uses natural gas for supplemental combustion on rainy days and at night. One of its very important features is that the stronger the solar radiation, the stronger the cooling capacity of the air conditioner. The use of solar air conditioner is very economical, because it uses free sunlight, so the operating cost is extremely low, and users can enjoy the air conditioner almost luxuriously. Regardless of winter and summer, solar air conditioner can not only provide users with free cold air, but also hot air. When the sun is insufficient or the stored energy is exhausted, the machine will automatically switch to the grid, and when the sun is sufficient, it will switch to using sunlight as energy. All switching tasks are automatically completed, and the user does not need to do it. It is the terminator of energy-saving indicators, the solver of power shortage, the gold mine of wealth on the roof, and the environmentally friendly new energy air conditioner that is perfectly integrated with the building.
